Telegraphers Strike.

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 16.—Just seventy-two operators and station agents employed on the lines of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul system quit work today.

General Manager Earling says the road is prepared for any emergency and at every station where an operator quit work another was ready to take his place, so that the telegraphic business suffered no delay. The men involved in this affair really had no grievance and were deceived by order of the railway telegraphers. There has been no reduction of salaries, but simply equalization. He stated that of 46 Iowa men who went out, thirty-four were employed on the Council Bluffs division. At some of the Iowa stations the wires were tampered with and switches left open, but no serious delay resulted from this.

The railroad officials claim only a few men are out and that their places were promptly filled, but it is claimed by representative operators that one of the official's clerks, siding with the strikers, carried a telegram to the strikers' headquarters this morning on the sly which announced that large numbers were quitting.

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 16.—St. Paul railroad officials here say they have received no word that any operators have resigned. The Kansas City division is working all right. The local operators are at work as usual this morning.

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—Grand Chief Thurston of the Order of Railway Telegraphers and Grievance Committee, with the station agents and telegraph operators on the lines of the St. Paul road, are in conference in this city. According to their statement the road is seriously crippled by the strike. They claim they have advised that 400 or 450 men on the line are out, and that additional resignations are constantly being received by telegraph and by mail, making the knock-off practically unanimous.

The committee at the strikers' headquarters admit this afternoon that so far the strike is a failure to tie up the business of the road, and it can continue to run trains. The committee, however, express the belief that more men will resign.

CEAR RAPIDS (Iowa), Jan. 16.—A strike of the agents and operators of the St. Paul road was inaugurated this morning.

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 16.—Assistant General Superintendent Williams had about 500 telegraphers on the division under him, and just twenty have resigned. He stated that business was not interrupted in the least, as plenty of men were to be had. None of the men have gone out here.

French Physicians Doubtful.

PARIS, Jan. 16.—French physicians criticize Professor Koch's report upon the ingredients of his lymph. They say that it is incomplete and the remedy shrouded in mystery. They hold the necessity for caution is unabated. French critics also say no patient treated according to the Koch system in France has been cured. Further experiments are needed before the final opinion can be formed as to the merits of the lymph. Meanwhile the French physicians urge that the remedy neither be decried or over-praised.

Colorado Legislature.

DENVER, Jan. 14.—The two warring factions of the House of Representatives failed to reach an amicable settlement of their differences. Both factions held a meeting this morning, but nothing was done.

Hawley, the police inspector who was shot yesterday morning by Hurley McCoy, died this morning.

Lincoln in London.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—Lincoln arrived here at 10 o'clock this morning from Southampton. The staff of the American Legation was awaiting his arrival and gave him a warm welcome.

The reports that Blaine will communicate with Lord Salisbury through Lincoln on the Behring Sea question are not confirmed.

A Teacher Talks.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The Commissioner of Indian Affairs received from Elaine Goodale, Supervisor of Education at Pine Ridge, a report of the battle at Wounded Knee. She says her information is chiefly from the Indian prisoners engaged in it, and persons who afterwards visited the scene. The survivors of Big Foot's band are unanimous in the statement that the Indians did not deliberately plan resistance. It was not a war party. Many of them were unarmed, intending to visit the agency at the invitation of Red Cloud. When they met the troops they anticipated no trouble. There was constant and friendly intercourse between the soldiers and Indians, even women shaking hands with officers and men. The demand for their arms was a surprise to the Indians, but a great majority chose to submit quietly. The Tepees had already been searched and a number of guns, knives and hatchets confiscated when the searching of the men began. Women say they too were searched, and their knives, which they always carry for domestic purposes, were taken from them. A number of men surrendered their rifles and cartridge belts, when one young man, described by the Indians as a good-for-nothing young fellow, fired a single shot. This called forth a volley from the troops, and the firing and confusion became general. I do not credit the statement made by some that women carried arms and participated actively in the fight. The weight of testimony is overwhelmingly against this supposition. There may have been one or two isolated cases of this kind, but there is no doubt that a great majority of the women and children, as well as men, were unarmed. The youth had no thought of anything but flight. They were pursued up ravines and shot down indiscriminately by the soldiers.

Sioux Surrender Slowly.

PINE RIDGE, Jan. 16.—This morning it is reported on good authority that General Miles ordered the civilians to keep out of the hostiles' camp because he intended to disarm the Indians if he had to shell their camp to accomplish that purpose. Adjutant-General Corbin was asked if General Miles issued such orders, but he would neither admit nor deny that such determination was decided upon. So long, he claimed, as arms were being surrendered by the Indians there was no necessity to use force. This morning about twenty Indians came into the agency under Little Hawk and surrendered their thirty-one guns. Their clothing was not searched, but no one doubts that they bore hidden arms, which they would not hesitate to use in case of an emergency. Thus far fifty-one guns have been turned over out of at least four hundred which the hostiles are believed to possess.

The Cheyennes belonging to Little Chief and Standing Elk's band left today for Tongue river, as it is decided that they cannot live comfortably among the Sioux.

The Irish Imbroglio.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—Timothy Healy telegraphed to the Pall-Mall Gazette denying that William O'Brien or O'Brien's father-in-law, or family, received Barry or himself in an unbecoming manner while in Paris. Healy says O'Brien's relations are not Parnells, or sympathizers with Parnell. Healy adds Barry and himself were warmly welcomed, and O'Brien is as determined an opponent of Parnell's leadership as he is. The paper quotes Parnell's statement made Sunday last while addressing the meeting at Limerick, that he, Healy, was perfectly satisfied with Parnell.

New York Stocks.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—The stock market this morning lost none of its weakness of yesterday. Opening prices, irregular, but changes generally confined to small fractions. Sugar refineries and Union Pacific advanced slightly, while Missouri Pacific dropped 1-8; Northern Pacific preferred 1-8; and the rest of the market fractional amounts. Great activity developed under heavy pressure of short stocks, and when this pressure was lifted, the market became more quiet and recovered slightly. At noon the market was dull, barely steady, close to lowest figures reached.

The stock market continued dull and weak during the two hours of the afternoon session, and the lowest prices of the day were about 2 o'clock. Later prices advanced small fractions and closed active and strong at small fractions under the opening figures.

Congressional Matters.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce today changed the wording of the third section of the pending bill to amend the Interstate Commerce law by striking out part of the provisions relative to the establishment of several through routes over the connecting railroads and substituting therefor the following: "Facilities to be afforded shall include due and reasonable receiving, forwarding a delivering by one carrier at the request of any other common carrier or shipper or consignee of through traffic at through rates of fare."

The silver pool investigation committee held a preliminary session this morning for the purpose of arranging a plan of procedure. The committee adjourned after directing that subpoenas be issued for Messrs. Stevens and Apperson, the two Washington correspondents of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, which paper made the original charge. The principal question considered by the committee was as to its power to compel the attendance and testimony of witnesses. The conclusion reached was an affirmative one. It was decided that the report be admitted to a future session of the committee.

A resolution was adopted giving the silver pool committee leave to sit during the sessions of the House and granting it the power to conduct the investigation outside of Washington if desirable.

The House then went into Committee of the Whole on the District of Columbia appropriation bill.

Amendments and remarks favoring the immediate passage of the bill were made by Dolph, Mitchell and Gibson. The bill passed.

At the close of the morning hour the Vice-President laid before the Senate as "unfinished business" the elections bill, and Pascoe took the floor to make an argument against it.

Hoover transmitted a message to the Legislature today, stating that James Murdoch of the Northern Pacific refused to pay into the Treasury the cash balance due the State, Nov. The California Legislature.

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 16.—Yesterday Sewell offered a resolution asking that as twenty-seven Republicans had clerks at $5 per day, the twelve Democrats ought to have twelve clerks at $3 per day. The resolution was referred to Senator Heacock, who this morning presented a report stating that at the last session twenty-four Democratic Senators had forty-nine clerks at $5 a day, and as but twelve Democrats have been returned it was deemed advisable to indefinitely postpone Sewell's resolution. The report was adopted.

There was considerable discussion over the passage of the bill providing for fixing the postmaster's salary at $4 and providing for an assistant at the same salary. The bill finally passed. The following bills were introduced: By Crandall, an Act to enfranchise women and make them eligible as voters. By Dennison, an Act to amend the section of the civil code relative to benevolent and religious corporations. By Crandall, to amend the political code as to a reassessment of property. By Voorhies, to appropriate money for painting the portraits of Waterman and Markham. By Long, providing for the maintenance of the State Mining Bureau.

A number of bills were introduced. Many of them are the same as those presented in the Senate. Lowe introduced a bill to provide for a superintendent of State buildings and works; Clarke, to give preference to ex-soldiers in employment on public works. Recess till 2 p. m.

JOTTINGS.

"In which yard did you lose the ball, my boy?" "The one with the dog in." And it's cheaper to buy a new one at C. J. Brooks'.

Sitting Bull could hardly have left more widows if he had been a wealthy bachelor who died intestate, and took his lach and beer every day at J. J. Becker's.

The Indians have no telegraph lines. They always get the worst of it in any report of a fight. The Indian war did not affect the Riverside Hotel, which is always well supplied with fish and game.

A New York doctor says there are millions of bacilli and bacteria on street car straps, and advises people not to hang on the straps. The aroma of a good cigar bought of C. A. Thurston is a sure preventative.

Numerous exchanges observe that "Jay Gould carries a 35-cent cane." They seem to think he is rich enough to hire some one to carry it for him. Richard Herz carries a finer stock of canes than Jay Gould, and he never wrecked a railroad.

Confirmed.

Gave Them a Thorough Trial.

Hon. E. A. Moore, Member of Assembly, Richmond county, N. Y., writes: "I have two afflictions which sometimes make life a burden. One is dyspepsia, the other is rheumatism. I heard of Chamberlain's Pills, took one or two at night on an empty stomach, would cure rheumatic pains. I gave them a thorough trial for three weeks, taking one or two every night. To my delight, not only was I cured of rheumatism, but dyspepsia, costiveness and biliousness. They did not interfere with my diet or business, and I really think them an incomparable blood purifier and cathartic."

"Is this the best?" Is the question often asked, when medicine is wanted. The following are a few of the medicines of known reliability, sold by Shoemaker & Co., druggist of this place. They have many other excellent medicines, but these are worthy of especial mention:

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, famous for its cures of severe colds, and as a preventative for croup. Price 50 cents per bottle.

Chamberlain's Pain Balm, a general family liniment and especially valuable for rheumatism. Price 50 cents per bottle.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, the most reliable known medicine for bowel complaints. It is especially prized by persons subject to colic. It has cured many cases of choleric diarrhoea. Price 25 and 50 cents per bottle.

St. Patrick's Pills, or disorders of the liver and bowels, a vigorous but gentle physic that cleanses and renovates the whole system. Price 25 cents per box.

Chamberlain's Eye and Skin Ointment. For tetter, salt rheum, scald-head, eczema and chronic sore eyes. Price 25 cents.

The New Discovery.

You have heard your friends and neighbors talking about it. You may yourself be one of the many who know from personal experience just how good a thing it is. I you have ever tried it, you are one of its staunch friends, because the wonderful thing about it is, that when once given a trial, Dr. King's New Discovery ever after holds a place in the house. If you have never used it and should be afflicted with a cough, cold, or any throat, lung or chest trouble, secure a bottle at once and give it a fair trial. It is guaranteed every time, or money refunded. Trial bottle free at Wm. Pinniger's drug store.

he question has been asked. "In what respect are St. Patrick's Pills better than any other?" Try them. You will find that they produce a pleasant cathartic effect, are more certain in their action, and that they not only physic but cleanse the whole system and regulate the liver and bowels. For sale at 25 cents per box by Shoemaker & Co.

The First Step.

Perhaps you are run down, can't eat, can't sleep, can't think, can't do anything to your satisfaction, and you wonder what ails you. You should heed the warning, you are taking the first step toward Nervous Prostration. You need a nerve tonic, and in Electric Bitters you will find the exact remedy for restoring your nervous system to its normal, healthy condition. Surprising results follow the use of this great nerve tonic and alterative. Your appetite returns, good digestion is restored and the liver and kidneys resume healthy action. Try a bottle. Price 50c, at Wm. Pinniger's Drug Store.

CARSON LAKE.

An Interesting Description of that Prehistoric Spot—A Good Field for the Geologist.

EDITOR GAZETTE: I have been requested many times to describe some of the physical features of that part of Churchill county commonly known as the Carson Sink. Geographically it is a plateau with an elevation of 4,000 feet. Locally it is a circular valley with a diameter of about fifty miles. It is almost level, one exception being an elevation of about 500 feet, rising from near the center of the valley, and having a base circumference of four miles. This hill is a prominent landmark in the great valley. It is of volcanic origin, as the rocks are of igneous formation.

From the center of the valley the mountains, on account of their distance, do not present that rugged appearance so noticeable in many of the valleys of this State, but are softened in their outlines. It is evident to a casual observer that the valley has a mild climate on account of its great size and the protection afforded by its encircling mountains. It is comparatively free from storms and extremes of heat and cold. In the winter the sky is seldom forecast entirely with clouds, and the sun during the day warms the air. In the night the warm air does not give place to cold currents as rapidly as in small valleys near high mountains, hence there is not that sudden cooling of the atmosphere that produces low temperatures. It would be natural to suppose that the summers are intensely hot, but here again the physical surroundings cause a marked degree of equilibrium. The great size of the valley admits of local currents of air, and thus, in obedience to the well-known laws governing such movements, extremes of heat are prevented.

If anyone will take the trouble to locate a point on the map thirty-nine degrees and thirty minutes north, and one hundred and eighteen degrees and fifty minutes west, it will fall near the center of the valley of the Sink of the Carson. In the south-eastern part of the basin is the upper sink, or Carson Lake, proper, and in the north-eastern part, the lower sink of the Carson, or the extreme western part of the Humboldt Lake. This latter body of water is incorrectly marked upon a recent map of this State as Carson Lake. This lake receives a part of the water of the Carson river, and during times of flood, water from the Humboldt river flows into it. Thus it is seen that the waters from the two rivers meet.

The Carson lake only receives water from the Carson river. A few miles from its entrance into the valley the Carson river divides into three parts, thus more easily carrying off the water when the spring floods are running, and opening up a large area for irrigation. It is along or near these divisions of the river that the farming land is situated. The northern division, or Old River, flows directly into the lower sink; the southern division goes directly into Carson lake, while the middle stream, or New river, again divides and part of the water goes into Carson lake and part of it, flowing past Stillwater, goes north into the lower sink, and eventually meets the water from the Humboldt. Of course, this lake place only in times of extraordinary high water, as was experienced during the spring of 1890. For the two years previous to this the lakes had gone completely dry, and when the mighty floods came last spring it took three or four months for the water to fill up these vast areas of waste. Had these lakes been full of water last spring, it is easy to see the result would have been disastrous. The mighty volume of water would have had no place to go, and would have literally been piled upon the farms situated upon the low ground. With every chance for an uninterrupted flow, so much water came that considerable damage was done.

Generally speaking, the land along these rivers is easily brought under irrigation. The banks of the rivers are not high, and the valley being comparatively level, the water does not flow with a dangerous current. A dam in the river three or four feet high and a ditch with a grade of 22 inches to the mile will bring water upon the surface of the ground, with about three miles of ditch. Along the river the cottonwood grows readily, many trees attaining a large size. Evidences are found upon every hand that this valley was once a great lake or inland sea. Remains of aquatic animals are plentiful, and along the sides of the mountains the water marks can still be traced.

A NEVADA PIONEER.

Bobs Up Merely from South Africa.

Charles W. Tozer, an old pioneer of Nevada, has arrived in Salt Lake on his way home to San Francisco, from a trip to South Africa. He has been in the Transvaal and the country adjacent for a year and a half past. Colonel Tozer is a representative American miner. He was in every camp in California before the discovery of the Comstock; he has been in every camp discovered since; this whole region is mapped on his brain as correctly as his file survey office; now he has made another map of South Africa. While he has been doing this Western country, during the last thirty years, he has made diversions enough to Mexico to know that country perfectly. Chas. W. Tozer was once a member of the Nevada Legislature, was elected Speaker of the House, and he made an able presiding officer. Some of his colleagues are still here and are now wending their way to the Capital to "move the previous question," as they did when Ferguson said "Man is Frail."

VALUABLE OPINIONS.

Calculated to Give the Legislature Some Idea of What is Best to Do.

The GAZETTE files the following additional opinions to its query as to what law would be most beneficial for the incoming Legislature to pass:

RENO, Jan. 16, 1891.

EDITOR GAZETTE: A law which will wed water and land by some safe and wise system will lay the foundation for a thousand years of prosperity.

We must remember that, while economy in expenses is always imperative in good government, the creation of property is the only way to grow great. If we could cut off all our expenses and at the same time earn nothing, we shall still be poor. To make a State we must utilize, combine and develop our resources, under legal provisions and restrictions, which will prevent monopolies from obtaining control of our water supplies and oppressing the people, and which will at the same time establish proper safeguards for the protection of capital from the possible attacks of demagogues and dishonest persons who might try to destroy the investments. If the forces of the counties, the State and private capital could be set to work to secure storage, reclamation and settlement, Nevada would go ahead in good style.

Very respectfully,

R. L. FULTON.

RENO, Jan. 15, 1891.

EDITOR GAZETTE: Upon the unrestricted exercise of the elective franchise depends the perpetuation of this Republic. When, as was the case at our last election, votes were a purchasable commodity; when men, claiming recognition in social and business circles, in defiance of every principle of decency and law, used money for the purchase of votes, then I claim that the time has come for the enactment of some law that will make such a crime impossible. I consider, without suggesting any plan, that a change or modification of our election law is the most important subject for the consideration of the incoming Legislature.

Very respectfully yours,

A. DAWSON.

CARLIN, Nev., Jan. 14. EDITOR GAZETTE: Stop the shoe shop at the States Prison. The leather is not worth as much after it is made up by the prisoners as it is before it is cut.

THAT DEAD MAN.

Coroner Peers Returns With His Body, and He Was Buried Without an Inquest.

Coroner Peers returned with the dead man found eight miles north of Simonds station, on Pyramid Lake, yesterday. He was buried without any one recognizing him. It seems he left Simonds on New Year's day, and told the people there that he was a stage robber, and that he was in pursuit of him, but that they would never take him. He left the station and walked about eight miles to a narrow canyon in the mountains and cut his own throat from ear to ear.

The coroner found that his face and hands had been badly gnawed by mountain rats, and that he was very much disfigured. His body had frozen and thawed several times, and was in an advanced state of decay. He was a man apparently about 40 years of age and was a stranger in these parts. No inquest was held.

A COLLECTION MISHAP.

A Man Who Was After Money Run Up Against a Lady's Bustle.

Ladies, who pull up their stockings in doorways, are often seriously damaged by those rushers who charge up and down stairs on a four-bit collection with the speed of a locomotive. A very sweet, modest-looking girl, while engaged in this interesting occupation the other day, in a doorway on Virginia street, was run into by a long-legged, lantern-jawed collector, who had treed an unfortunate young creditor in an upper story. The sound came plump against the lady's bustle, knocking it quite out of gear and playing the deuce generally with the stocking combination. The scorn of her glance almost withered the paste diamond in his shirt, and the fair victim warped out of anchorage with her ballast shifted to port.

The Great Spring Medicine.

It will be gratifying to all who realize the vital necessity of purifying the blood, to know that Hubbard's Rheumatic Syrup can be relied upon as a blood medicine. Mr. B. C. Robinson, of Marshall, Mich., says: "Gentlemen—I have suffered intensely from biliousness and rheumatism for over three years and had tried so many remedies that I had lost all faith. Hearing of Hubbard's Rheumatic Syrup I bought a bottle and found it helped me. I have now used four bottles, and it has restored my liver and kidneys to healthy action, and done more to purify my blood than anything I have ever taken. I am pleased to recommend it as a wonderful blood medicine. Yours very truly, B. C. Robinson, Marshall, Mich. Sold by all druggists. Prepared only by the Charles Wright Medicine Company, Detroit, Mich."

The size of this country is a great source of amazement to the average foreigner. Their astonishment is of much the same nature that once prompted an English actor, a member of Henry Irving's company, by the way, to remark: "I never saw such a blasted big country. You get in the cars and you ride all day and all night and then find that you haven't got anywhere after all."

Disorders which Affect the Kidneys.

Are among the most formidable known. Diabetes, Bright's disease, gravel and other complaints of the urinary organs are not ordinarily cured in severe cases, but they may be averted by timely medication. A useful stimulant of the urinary glands has been found in Boscatter's Stomach Bitters, a medicine which not only affords the requisite stimulus when they become weak, but increases their vigor and secretory power. By increasing the activity of the kidneys and bladder, this medicine has the additional effect of expelling from the blood impurities which it is the peculiar office of these organs to eliminate and pass off. Boscatter's is a purifier and strengthener of the bowels, an invigorant of the stomach and a matchless remedy for biliousness and fever and ague. It counteracts a tendency to premature decay and sustains and comforts the aged and infirm.

Sick headache and a sensation of oppression and dullness in the head, are very commonly produced by indigestion; morbid dependency, irregularity and over-sensitiveness of the nerves may, in a majority of cases be traced to the same cause. Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm and Fillets will positively cure.

TAKE HEART OF GRACE.

Take heart of grace, begin anew.
To-day's to-day, not yesterday,
And on its budding bloom the day
Of early morning still doth play.

Take heart of grace, and gather up
This dewy sweetness of the morn,
Fill up with this your emptied cup,
And pledge the fair hours newly born.

Take heart of grace, and look before,
Instead of backward on the way;
Wash out the old regretful score,
The sorrowing sins of yesterday.

And let the old mistakes and pain
Be cleansed with this refreshing dew,
And make beginning once again,
With hope and courage bright and new.

For what's the world and all its days,
But ours to try and try again?
Not ours to falter on its ways,
Not ours to fling aside for pain.

Take heart of grace then, day by day,
To-day's to-day, not yesterday;
"To-day's to-day, not yesterday,"
And all the world is newly born!"

OVER THE WIRES.

Acquaintances Made by the Telegraph Key.

How Men, Who Have Never Looked Into Each Other's Faces, Become the Best of Friends and Exchange Confidences—Peculiar Abbreviations.

Telegraph operators form strong friendships over the wires. Metaphorically they shake hands cordially twice a day—when they begin work and when they end it. And when business is dull they hold long conversations with hundreds of miles—perhaps thousands—separating them, as two friends might do over a dinner table. They tell of their hopes and fears and ambitions and impart very confidential information to men whom they have never seen. Of course, all these exchanges take place between those who have been in communication constantly for some time.

There are pairs of men who have been in daily communication with each other over the same telegraph wire for years, and who have never seen each other. Each is well acquainted with the other's temperament, his moods, his disposition, and his sentiments. Telegraph instruments and telegraph wires are unfeeling and stolid-looking things. Yet through them a man is able to convey emotions of sorrow or joy almost as plainly as they may be expressed facially. The fact is perfectly palpable to the man at one end of the wire, while he is receiving dispatches, that the man who is sending them is ill or well, or though the sender may make use of no terms of friendliness or swear words—that he is in good temper or bad.

When the feeling between two operators in two cities, instead of being that of gentle affection, is that of strong dislike, the fact can be made just as apparent as though they were within a few feet of each other. No personal collision can occur, of course. That is one of the drawbacks. But a man can call names and make threats over the wire with almost the same facility as by word of mouth. One of the favorite resorts when two operators are quarreling is that professionally known as "fighting circuit." Not much is accomplished by this, however, for when two operators strive at the same time to call names over a wire, neither can succeed.

Telegraphers have an old story about "fighting circuit." It is so very old, indeed, that it is doubtful if it is ever told nowadays. It is of one man who, for instance, was in Albany, and another who, for instance, was in Syracuse. After a successful exchange of complimentary remarks they began to "fight circuit," that is, they both tried to send epithets over the wire at once. They fought for some time. Neither would yield. The man at Albany, who was old and astute, saw that the man at Syracuse, who was young and stubborn, was in for an all-night struggle. The Albany man looked around for a proxy. He found it in the clock wire, which was a wire attached to the clock's pendulum, the swaying of which acted to open and close the circuit. He connected the Syracuse wire with the clock wire and went home to bed, leaving the Syracuse man valiantly battling with the tick-tick, tick-tick of the clock. The old story concludes with the victorious statement that when the Albany man reached the office the next morning he heard the Syracuse man still fighting the clock, and that when the former disconnected the clock wire and closed the circuit the latter snapped out, triumphantly: "I downed you at last, did I?"

"Fighting circuit" is probably the most annoying occupation there is. The very impotency, the very futility of it is maddening. Here is a man who has offered a grievous insult. Yet the insultee can not get at the insultor to kick him. They may be separated by thousands of miles—the practice of calling hard names is not infrequent, possibly, for that reason. "Fighting circuit" has several times driven men to the verge of frenzy. There is a record in the archives of the Western Union office, New York City, the tale of an excitable operator who, after a long and unsuccessful struggle to say something mean to a man in Buffalo whom he hated, and who at the same time was trying to say something mean to him, suddenly rose from his chair and darted from the operating-room down to the street. There he gazed wildly around, looking for some object on which to vent his anger. Near him a peaceable, mild-mannered gentleman was having his boots polished. The unhappy operator rushed at him, struck him in the face and shouted: "Blank, blank you, you're always getting your boots blacked!" But that was in the old days.

Not always, however, have differences arising over a wire been without a bloodless termination. It has been the case on a number of occasions that the insultee has boarded a train for the town of the insultor, and that upon the insultor being pointed out to him the two have come together in an affray. But such instances are exceptions. Even though a man may board a train full of the thought of vengeance, it is likely to ooze out after a few hours' ride, and the visit, instead of being sanguinary, may be one of harmonious peace and good feeling. It may be stated positively that no quarrel begun over a telegraph wire has ever resulted fatally.

In their conversations telegraphers use a system of abbreviations which enables them to say considerably more in a certain period of time than they otherwise could. Their morning greeting to a friend in a distant city is usually "g. m." and the farewell for the evening "g. n." and the letters of course standing for good morning and good night. The salutation may be accompanied by an inquiry by one as to the health of the other, which would be expressed thus: "H w u ts mng?" And the answer would be: "I'm pty w; hw r u?" or "I'm nt flg vy w; frid I've gt mlaria."

By the time these courtesies have taken place some early messages have come from the receiving department or from some other wire, and the man before whom they are placed says to his friend many a time, "Wl hrs a fu: Gol hang ts everlastin grind. I wish I ws rich." And the other man says: "No rest fo t wickd, min pen," the last two words indicating that he wants the sender to wait a minute while he adjusts and tests his pen. Presently he clicks out a "g. a." meaning "go ahead," and the day's work has begun. If the sender is old in the business he will take a steady, even gait, and the fact that the messages are piling up faster than he is getting rid of them won't worry him. When the pile gets too big he will notify the chief operator, and that important individual will probably take a portion of them away and have them sent by another wire. But if the sender is young and ambitious he will, as soon as the messages begin to accumulate, deem it his duty to "whoop 'em up," and unless the other man is ambitious too there will be trouble pretty quick.

The receiver will "break" a good deal, and directly he will observe: "Oh dt b in sch a bloomin hurry, u wont gt ur salary raised t' way." And the sender, being young and "fresh," will reply to the effect that the receiver is a "ham" and will advise him to "get rlf," which means that he ought to get up and let a competent receiver take his place. Then he will snap out the figure "4" peremptorily, which is the arbitrary sign standing for "Where shall I go ahead?" But although he may hurry and peep, he won't send as many messages as the steady old fellow during the day.

No two operators send alike. The click of the instrument is always the same to the ear of a man who does not understand it, but one operator recognizes the sending of another if he has ever heard it before for any length of time, just as a familiar face is recognized. Operator "Tommy" Snaggs leaves New York, and, after roaming from one city to another, finally lands in the Galveston (Tex.) office and goes to work. He is put down to work a wire running to Kansas City. The man in Kansas City begins to send. Mr. Snaggs pricks up his ears and interrupts the sender. "Ain't t' u Billy Robinson?" he asks, and the other man says: "Yes, ts me, & u ole Tommy Snaggs." Mr. Snaggs returns: "ts w lam, and I thot I recognized ur sendin." Then they devote a few moments to telling of their travels. The last time they worked on the same wire one was in Boston and the other in Montreal.

It is a peculiar fact also that an experienced operator can almost invariably distinguish a woman's sending from a man's. There is nearly always some peculiarity about a woman's style of transmission. It is not necessarily a fault. Many women send very clearly and make their dots and dashes precisely as they were intended to be made. It is impossible to describe the peculiarity, but there is no doubt of its existence. Nearly all women have a habit of rattling off a lot of meaningless dots before they say any thing. But some men do that too. A woman's touch is lighter than a man's, and her dots and dashes will not carry so well on a very long circuit. That is presumably the reason why in all large offices the women are usually assigned to work the wires running to various parts of the cities.

Operators laugh over a wire, or rather, they convey the fact that they are amused. They do this by telegraphing "ha, ha." Very great amusement is indicated by sending "ha" slowly and repeating it several times, and a smile is expressed by sending "ha" once or perhaps twice. Transmitting it slowly and repeating it tells the perpetrator of the joke at the other end of the wire that the listener is leaning back in his chair and laughing long and heartily.—N. Y. Times.

Mozart's Memory.
It is told of Mozart that when he was fourteen years old he heard in Rome the "Miserere of Allegri," and knowing that it was forbidden to take or give a copy of this famous piece he paid such attention to the music that when he reached home he noted down the entire score. He was enabled a few days afterward to check the copy, when he found that he had not made a single mistake. The next day he produced such a sensation in Rome by singing the "Miserere" at a concert that Pope Clement XIV. requested that he should be presented to him. Thus, by his wonderful memory, he was enabled to begin with success his musical career.
